

Client Discharge Policy

At the beginning of treatment, you and the staff will develop a treatment plan and IRP, indicating short and long-term goals. Treatment will normally be ended by mutual decision of the consumer and staff when all goals of treatment are met, and you have no further need for services.

If you wish to end treatment and the staff disagree with this decision, we ask that you meet one additional time to discuss your reasons for decision before stopping treatment. If the staff wishes to end treatment and you disagree with their decision, the staff will discuss the reasons for this decision with you. if you still disagree with this decision, you may appeal this decision by filling a grievance following the established procedure. if you stop participating in treatment without giving notice to your staff, we will discharge you from the services once we have made attempts to contact you. Treatment is best ended when you and your treatment team agree and plan for ending treatment together.
